ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for applying supplemental hair for the purpose of lengthening, thickening , and concealing hairloss, in which supplemental hair is applied with a series of partings in the wearer's natural hair and adhesive is applied to the exposed scalp. Said apparatus including grip handles, clamp arms, and clamp, are operable to allow open and close movement of clamp arms in which the secured supplemental hair is released and secured to the scalp with the application of adhesive/glue.